Car Crashes Through Window

At 10.40 p.m. on Wednesday evening a 1950 Pontiac car driven by Mrs. Shirley J. Linkie of Harcourt, crashed through the plate glass window of the building occupied by Thomas Irwin Ltd.

It would appear that faulty brakes were responsible as Mr. and Mrs. Linkie had just got into the car to go home and the car, which had been parked directly in front of the showroom, hopped the curb and went through the window.

The window was completely demolished and an oil furnace which was sitting inside was badly marked.

This is the second time that this window has been smashed by a motor vehicle.

Minden W.I. Visit Bury's Green

On Thursday, October 20 18 members of Minden's W.I. including three from Haliburton, visited Bury's Green branch at the beautiful pioneer home, "Maple Lane Farm," of the Fell family, situated on the Sommerville township boundary, beside the entrance to Bury's Green church. This was a pleasure to drive up to such a home-stead with its neat farms amid well tilled fields, a flock of snowy geese scattering and nearby, the children pride a group of autumn colored Bantys chattering away.

Mrs. Gordon Fell and children are the fourth generation to welcome guests which gathered in the large sunny kitchen.

The president, Mrs. Alvin Griffin, welcomed the Minden branch and conducted the usual opening exercises. Mrs. Griffin stated that this was Mrs. Armstrong's program, convenor of community activities and public relations.

REPORT OF WEST GUILFORD
RECREATION CLUB

In January of 1958 a few men and women of West Guilford formed a club to help the boys and girls of our community.

The first month we sponsored a skating carnival with games and lunch in the school auditorium. There was a junior hockey game, with a program of local talent and a lunch in the school.

A turkey dinner was served to boys who played hockey and coaches.

We sponsored the Red Cross swimming and water safety preparing beach, raft, floats and swings for the playground, also paying the instructor's fees for one week.

Our money has come from donations, tickets sold on an electric tea kettle and minmix, proceeds from social evenings and collections from our members.

In 1958 we had a surplus of $76.65.

In 1959 there were two social events in the school with friends showing beautiful pictures of the British Isles, Europe, U.S. and the western provinces.

In February there was a skating carnival with prizes and lunch afterward in the school auditorium.

An entertainment by the school children under the direction of our members was enjoyed by everyone.

Money was spent on clearing the ice, paying an assistant to help the swimming instructor, providing supplies for the playground and hockey equipment.

Money was made by donations, a basket social and dance, a raffle on two quilts and four puppies, and money from our members. Our profit is now $158.42.

In 1960 the annual skating party and carnival was again successful with a lunch and colorful pictures of Bermuda in the school basement afterward.

In April there was a variety card party.

All the boys who played hockey were served a hot turkey dinner in the church basement.

We again sponsored the swimming lessons, paid an assistant instructor and supplies for the playground.

A sandwich grill and quilt were raffled. Donations and proceeds from social evenings helped our funds. In October 1960 we had a surplus of $332.21.

Our aim is to establish an outdoor rink with permanent lighting, water supply and wiring. Also a suitable building adjoining the rink where children may change to skates in warmth, and a connecting kitchen, suitable for meetings and serving lunches.

We would like to thank all the kind people who have helped us financially with their talent, manual labor and the many tasty lunches.

We trust this project will be approved and helped by everyone for the benefit of our children.

The topic "Shine as Lights" was read by Mrs. R. Baker.

It was moved by Mrs. R. Baker that the minutes be adopted as read, seconded by Mrs. L. Winch, followed by the roll call.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. L. Winch and she continued to tell us more about "Africa Disturbed." This month we were looking in on the second chapter entitled "The Bridge" which means changing from the old to the new.

Our devotional leader, Mrs. H. A. Baker read us a very interesting topic on faith and what faith means.

The meeting was then closed with prayer by Mrs. H. A. Baker. Lunch was then served.

In Memoriam

Bird—In fond and loving memory of my husband, Jack, who passed away November 6, 1959:

We traveled life's road together, Amid faith and hope and love, And conquered life's battles together

With strength and comfort from God.

You often said I would miss you,

Your words have proven too true,

I lost my best and dearest pal,

Dear Jack, when I lost you.

So those who have a husband Treasure him with care:

You will never know his value

Till you see his vacant chair.

—Ever remembered by his wife Laura.

Cowan—In loving memory of a dear mother, Gladys Cowan, who passed away November 7, 1957:

A helping hand to all she knew;

She was so kind, so generous and true;

On earth she nobly did her best,

Grant her, Lord, heavenly rest.

—Lovingly remembered by son Alvin, daughter-in-law, Marjorie.

SUMMER ENDS

Days are growing shorter, And leaves are turning brown, The air is full of beating wings, As wild geese pass along. Mother Earth has yielded Her fruits of sweat and toil, All garnered safe within the wall, The blessings of the soil. Within the still and peaceful wood, The hare, the grouse and deer, Are standing by the limpid pool, They feel no cause for fear. Upon the hill the tall pine stands, With strong green arms up-raised, Giving thanks for sun and showers, And long warm summer days.

—Ann Cummins.

The Captain's Desk

CAPT. W. KERR
Salvation Army

Often there appears on my desk articles on a variety of subjects. A few of these I have found most interesting and it is one of these that I would like to pass on to you. My purpose is not to condemn or judge but that through the reading of the "Captain's Desk" series many might be blessed and be more anxious to serve and follow Jesus Christ.

What is your definition of Christianity? To help you decide, I want to focus your attention on the fact that the essence of Christianity is CHRIST. It is most important to grasp this, if we are to avoid intellectual and spiritual confusion. So much religious literature, preaching and popular opinion today has no conception of Christianity.

Christ is viewed by many as a teacher only. It is quite true, of course, that Christ came to teach. While Christianity includes doctrine, i.e. teaching, instruction and knowledge, it cannot be said to be doctrine alone, but rather the results therefrom; a new life.

Then there are those who tell us that Christianity is some particular ethic, and that Christ was nothing more than a moralist and a reformer. Here again, it is a fact that Christ could confront the people of His day and declare: "Ye have heard that it hath been said . . . But I say unto you" (Matt. 5:38-39). His ethic transcended all that the law had ever said; and in what we know as the Sermon on the Mount, He established standards of living that have been unequalled by any previous or subsequent moralist or reformer. But having said that, we must add that Christianity is not simply an ethic.

Still others hold the opinion that Christianity is some particular church; and that, therefore, Christ was only the Founder of a new movement. Now no one can read the New Testament without seeing that one of the main reasons why Christ came into this world was to found His Church. He Himself said: "I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it" (Matthew 16:18). That prophetic statement has been remarkably fulfilled, as is evidenced by the existence of the Church of Christ in every part of the world. But notwithstanding this, it cannot be said that Christianity is the Church.

Christianity is Christ; and the supreme purpose for which the Lord Jesus came into this world was not to be only a Teacher, Reformer or Founder, but the Saviour, to give Himself a ransom for sinners. If Christianity is Christ, then of necessity He must give Himself in order that men and women might be partakers of the very essence of Christianity.

The experience of Christianity begins when Christ is received. The Word of God tells us that "as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name" (John 1:12). Receiving is evidently something more than believing. You can believe without receiving, but you cannot receive without believing.

The essence of Christianity is Christ in us. May God enable each one of us to say, with a real sense of appreciation and responsiveness, "The Son of God . . . loved me, and gave himself for me" (Galatians 2:20).

Have you discovered the secret of the glory of Christ's indwelling? Are you free from the concern and burden of living, because He lives His life in you and through you? Have you experienced Christianity? If not, will you accept the Lord Jesus Christ into your heart and life? His promise is: "If any man hear my voice, and open the door (of his heart), I will come in" (Revelation 3:20).

—Stephen F. Olford.

Dysart Home And School

"Meet the Teachers Night" on October 17 attracted one of the largest gatherings in many months and it was noted that people from several townships in addition to Dysart came out to meet the teachers who are working with our children thus showing our support and interest.

The meeting opened with O Canada led by Mrs. Earle Cooper at the piano and Mrs. Higgins read the Home and school creed. October is Home and School membership month. It was announced that 74 members have now joined for the 1960-61 season and Mrs. Al. Blanchard won a door prize for being the 50th member to register this year.

Mr. Frank Litt introduced the high school staff and Mr. Ward introduced the teachers from the public schools. Mrs. Howe introduced the grade mothers after which Mr. Jim Scott, our conservation officer, with the aid of a fine film entitled "Safety While Hunting" pointed out the careless mistakes which are the cause of most hunting accidents.

Mr. Scott stressed the fact that there would be far fewer accidents if every hunter would wear properly conspicuous clothing while in the woods and would make certain what he was shooting at before ever pulling a trigger. Mr. Weaver thanked Mr. Scott for his timely address.

The attendance banner for the month was won by Mr. Baker's room and it was announced that a question box would be found at all future meetings and it was hoped everyone would make use of it. Panel discussions planned around the questions will be arranged if enough interest is shown to make this practicable.

A social half hour ended a very fine meeting and the president, Mrs. G. Elstone and her executive were greatly encouraged by the good attendance.

Next meeting we hope to go over the 100 mark in memberships and you are urged to take an active part and to bring your friends.

A HISTORY OF HALIBURTON by NILA REYNOLDS

THE SPRING DRIVE

Chapter 9

As soon as the snow became too deep for the cutting gangs to function efficiently the energy of the whole camp was channeled into the log haul. All day the sleighs piled high with logs labored on the draw roads and when they gained a respite with the falling of darkness the tank teams drew water in below zero temperature to build up the roads.

Few loggers who drew tank duty on the sleigh haul will ever forget the eerie loveliness of the snow sculptured landscape glittering in the light of a full winter's moon while the lakes heaved and rumbled as if an imprisoned giant were venting his wrath beneath the ice. Like travelers in the land of the midnight sun, the tank crew felt the full rigor of the frost king as they made their lonely way up from the lake while their comrades snatched a few hours well earned rest in the camp. During the log haul everyone worked impossible hours. Toward spring when the warmth of the afternoon sun threatened to melt the road surface it was not uncommon for the men to get up at 3 a.m. in order to take advantage of the frost.

Frequently their work was accomplished to the weird accompaniment of a wolf pack in full cry on the trail of some hapless deer. If the kill was made on the lake, the tank crew might become unwilling spectators of the slaughter.

In spite of newspaper columnist Gordon Sinclair's claim that a wolf will not attack a man, most of the early lumbermen and settlers in Haliburton county had stories which prove the reverse. Mrs. Tom Archer asserts that on one occasion her father, George Clarke, who settled near the United church at Maple Lake, while traveling by horseback in the early 1860's or '70's was pursued by a wolf pack which yelped at his heels until he reached the sanctuary of his own stable.

Many a wife in an isolated cabin has tended fires all night in order to have a flaming brand to thrust in the face of the wolves which howled around her door, should they manage to gain entrance. One wonders if Mr. Sinclair would have been so certain that wolves never attack humans had he been a member of one of the tanking gangs working unprotected in the dead of night miles from the safety of the camp while a pack of ravening wolves ranged nearby?

The peril from wolves was taken as a matter of course by the Haliburton natives but to the emigrants and greenhorns from the front country who came to work in the logging camps they became an impending horror whose menace was not diminished by so much as an adjective by the residents who loved a joke at the expense of strangers.

One garrulous Irishman actually persuaded a new gang that the only thing a hungry timber wolf feared was the rattle of a boom chain. Next morning the uninitiated ones set forth each happily dragging an eight foot boom chain weighing at least 40 pounds secure in the belief that the wolves would give them a wide berth. The regular loggers almost tied themselves in knots trying to contain their laughter until the foreman mercifully intervened.

With the spring break up the shantys closed and those not engaged for the "run" were paid off. The remaining men were sent to the depot camp to prepare for the drive which began in April as soon as the main body of ice left the lakes.

Previous to the 1890's horses and a capstan (similar to that by which a ship's anchor is weighed) operated by manpower was used to move the boom of logs across the water. It took a crew of 40 or 50 men to warp the logs by pushing the bars of the capstan while the slack rope was coiled as it came in. In freezing weather this tread-mill operation was a task to make the hardest flinch.

When the steam "alligator" was introduced it eliminated this unpleasant job and reduced the driving crew drastically. Amphibious, the alligator traveled over land by putting out a steel cable which was snubbed to a tree or some other solid object, when the cable was winched in the alligator was dragged across the portage which detoured a rapids too rough to run.

Before the drive could begin all equipment had to be put in operating condition. Boats, scows and cribs for sleeping and cooking had to be prepared while pike poles and peevies had to be made or repaired. Since only the spring freshet provided the volume of water necessary to carry off a drive which sometimes consisted of over a million feet everything must be ready the moment the ice broke.

On each of the tributary streams where the logs which sometimes numbered over 120,000 sticks had been dumped the crews engaged in the hazardous task of breaking the dumps of logs, sometimes frozen together, which had been piled on the steep banks of the dammed streams. First to enter the water were those at the base but careful as the rollers might be, they sometimes triggered the whole intricate mass which came cascading about their ears.

Only the most agile of the drivers ventured to roll the logs off the dump which held the potential danger of a lighted dynamite fuse. Those who worked in the face of such danger were proud of their ability; humility never headed the list of a river driver's virtues. Like the top men in any profession they were apt to boast of their achievements and glory in danger averted.

Such a man was Billy Lucey, top logger and star river driver for a timber firm taking a drive south around the turn of the century.

While breaking a dump of logs near Gene Packard's farm on the fourth concession in Guilford township Lucey's audacity in taking unnecessary chances among the tumbling logs frightened another worker who called to him: "Watch out Billy, you're going to get hurt!"

Arrogant in his youthful pride Lucey called back "God Almighty never made a log quick enough to catch me!"

The drivers, who were in their way a superstitious lot, shivered at this blatant challenge flung in the face of their Creator; the Catholics among them crossed themselves to ward off the impending evil which came within an hour. The log God made caught Billy Lucey crushing him so seriously that never again was he able to walk upright or work among the logs.

In those days Workmen's Compensation was a nebulous dream in the brains of reformers. Without relatives to care for him Lucey, once the top man on the river, was forced to drag his broken body from house to house like the wandering Jew begging bread and shelter.

The snows of nearly half a century have sifted across his forgotten grave but the passage of time cannot erase or detract from the heart-break and tragedy which came to the star logger who challenged God.

When the timber sticks were safely in the water, the stop-logs were pulled from the flood dams to provide the volume of water to carry the drive down the tributary streams to the main water way. Passage across the lakes, unless hampered by unfavorable winds, was usually a routine affair. It was on the rapids below the dams where the greatest trouble developed. One spot on the Burnt River actually hung up several drives before it was tamed by a control dam. If the rapids were too long and rocky and inclined to lose the volume of water before the run was completed, the pine loggers constructed slides which were achievements in engineering. The one below the Redstone dam can still be seen. Probably the biggest slide of all was "Buck's" constructed between Kushog and Boskung which facilitated the passage of the logs over a drop of 175 feet.

The rush of water from a wide open dam is a sight to make the bravest pause yet there is a legend among river men that a driver from Minden actually waded into the mouth of the White Horse above Sanderson's Rapids when there was a full head of water and lived to tell the tale.

If the angry water below a dam is a fearsome sight, the suction above an open dam is a sentence of doom to anything caught in its jaws. Too often it drew the timber helter skelter over the dam and into the rapids where they piled up too fast for the river drivers to handle. The resulting jam was sometimes as high as a two story building. It is then that the "jam crackers" among the white water men come into their own for only nerve, agility and a level head will bring a man safe through a jam breaking.

During the early 1890's the Howrey Lumber Co., an American concern which built a mill at Fenelon Falls said to have cost over a million dollars, were driving the Burnt River through Glamorgan township with a crew of over 100 men bossed by a muscular American foreman named Krosgrave. The big logger from across the border was equally noted for two accomplishments—his skill with his fists and a vocabulary of blistering English not found in Mr. Webster's dictionary.

At Thompson's chute, a particularly tricky piece of white water, a monumental jam formed which grew to such proportions that even the most fearless of his jam crackers joined their less skilled comrades on the river banks where they resisted both the curses and blandishments of their desperate foreman who watched impotently as the situation became momentarily more critical.

Finally the burly American foreman acknowledged his defeat by dropping to his knees where, instead of cursing as was his custom he prayed humbly and fervently, "Oh Lord, please send someone to break this jam for me."

No one stirred. Again he prayed, "Oh Lord, please send someone to break this jam for me."

There was an awful silence which seemed to last for an eternity then, from the ranks, stepped a young driver named Jerry Ford. "Mr. Krosgrave," he said with simple dignity, "The Lord sent me to help break your jam."

With their hearts literally in their mouths these hardened river men watched young Ford as he worked on the face of the jam prying here, chopping there, as he searched for the key log. When it was free the hundreds of tons of water pent up by the jammed logs exerted its strength. With an ear splitting thunder like a close range artillery barrage the logs avalanched down. Among their seething, twisting, rolling death youg Ford kept his feet dexteriously riding the tail of the lashing dragon.

With the safety of the banks almost reached he missed his footing and was swept from sight. Sadly his comrades combed the banks below expecting to find his battered body. Imagine their joy when they pulled him from the water with only a bad mauling and several broken ribs! Jerry Ford, Mr. Krosgrave's answer to prayer lived to break other jams.

Not so fortunate was one of the sons of John Maselas who in 1870 settled on lot 26, concession 1, Guilford township. While a hundred drivers lined the banks at Sanderson's Rapids on the Minden River below Horseshoe Lake, the 24 year old Maselas youth who was working on a moving jam lost his footing and was swept by the angry current beyond the reach of the men working on the side jams who might have been able to assist him.

Like a bobbing cork he was tossed over the brink of a falls whose jagged rocks tore at his body with tiger teeth. The men who watched held their breath in horror as the seething water from the wide open dam carried him over a second falls to his death.

After the water was lowered by closing off the dam at the head of the rapids his mangled body was found three quarters of a mile down river from the scene of the accident. Sanderson's Rapids had claimed another victim.

During the 1930's the power dam erected by the Orillia Water, Light & Power Commission drew the teeth of Sanderson's Rapids (named for another river driver who was drowned there) by flooding the most dangerous stretch of water. Pleasure boats now navigate the rapids which claimed the lives of at least two drivers and attractive summer homes line the river where once the timber of half a century, thundered through on its way to the mills to the south.

Today children play and city dwellers sun bathe on the camp sites frequented by the roistering white water men who, like the Indians before them, have vanished from the lakes and rivers which were once their highways.

CARNARVON

Mother Nature was indeed kind to the visitors who took part in the family visitation on Sunday last. This climaxed what has been going on in Zion United Church for the past six weeks. It has meant a good deal of work for some of the men and Rev. Staples but has had very gratifying results. In October a congregational dinner was held with the ladies from the Maple Lake United Church serving. The following evening the Carnarvon ladies reciprocated at the Maple Lake congregational dinner. Sunday morning a service of dedication was held with Mr. Staples speaking to a large congregation. Members taking part in the visitation had lunch at the church and from there proceeded to call on the families in the district.

Mr. C. P. Rogers spent a few days in Cambridge last week.

Visiting Mrs. L. B. Windsor recently were Mrs. Ray Mitts, her son and small granddaughter of Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Irwin arrived home on Sunday from a trip to Newfoundland. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. MacDonald, who have been staying at Sherwood Forest, will leave today for Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Harrison and family were in Toronto for the week end.

sheets that come from shopping centres or the man at the door are a bid for public relations. Our work exhibiting at the fall fairs, then on to government, in elections we work hard for public relations. The Colombo Plan which carries our good will across the seas to people who knew us not, thus improving our relations out in the world. The visits of our Queen and heads of other countries too. Our many attempts being made with the U.S.S.R. to gain more and better understanding and our work with U.N. is invaluable. Thus she stressed the use in our society of this comparatively new "standing committee."

Mrs. Gillison was heartily thanked and the business meeting continued with reading of minutes and roll call answered by "ways to make money for our branch."

It was decided to present the two brides of the neighborhood with a year's membership in the W.I.

Mrs. Fell, secretary of welfare and visiting committee, read notes of thanks received and a collection was taken.

Mrs. Alf Tiers gave her report on citizenship and education.

Mrs. Carr in her report on agriculture and Canadian industry, showed the pictures of the pioneers of Bobcaygeon who introduced Hereford cattle from Scotland.

Mrs. Wilfred Fairfield, historical convenor, read the history of the first settlers in Bobcaygeon.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Institute grace.

Mrs. Harding, president of the Minden group, then rose and in her inimitable manner told that this meeting fell between the birthdays of two of our society's oldest members who were also life members. Calling on Mrs. Fairfield and Mrs. Welch to rise, a birthday cake was presented and as the Happy Birthday song rang out they blew out the candles arranged at either end of the cake.

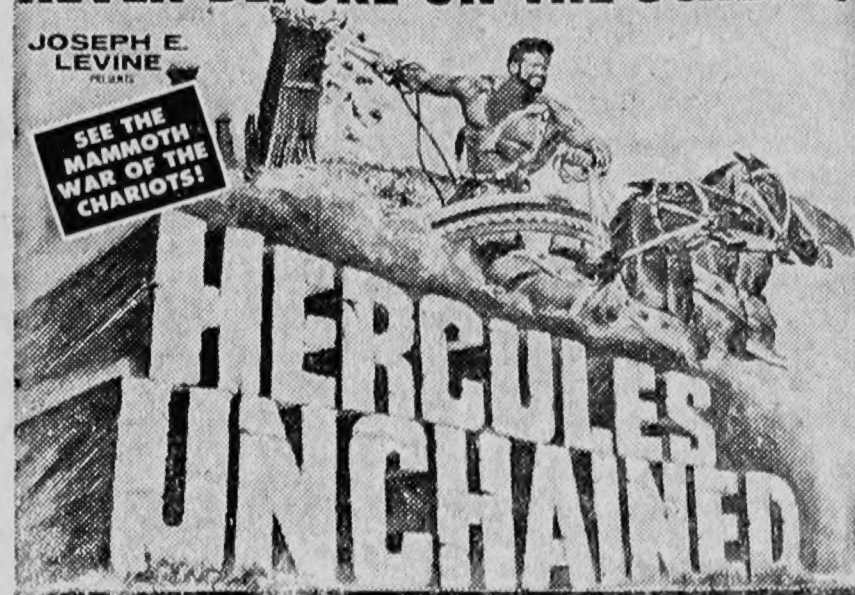

While the delicious lunch was served the group mingled ed renewing old acquaintances and making new ones. As a rippling circle spreads so such gatherings are good for public relations.
